Hi Lon,
A permit from our office is not needed for this type of activity.

Please clarify .. your website says LA Administrative Code requires that a film permit in required for the filming of commercial motion pictures (including television and other like projects).

➔ If someone wants to video their building for sale or leasing, I believe this does NOT apply as its not a commercial motion picture or television.

Please confirm.

Thank you,

Los Angeles Charter & Administrative Code

Division 22, Chapter 13, Article 8

Sec. 22.350. Permit Required to Use City Property for Commercial Filming Purposes.

No person, as defined in Section 11.01 of the Los Angeles Municipal Code, shall use any property belonging to or under the control of the City of Los Angeles for the purpose of making any commercial motion picture, or still photograph, of, or including such property, without first having obtained a use permit to do so from the City Council, or whomever the Council by order, resolution or ordinance may delegate such authority. No such use permit shall be issued until the permit applicant has paid the application fee and the use and service charge required in connection therewith, and until the permit applicant has furnished proof of insurance with coverage as required by the Director of the Office of Administrative and Research Services in a form approved by the City Attorney.
